

Letter of support for Srushti Gangdev

Of all the journalists I've hired and helped to mentor over the years, when I think of Srushti Gangdev, I immediately think of her passion for local news and dedication to her community.

When I asked her about her obvious passion for local news, and why she wanted a career in such a challenging line of work, her reply was all about giving a voice to those who often don't have one, shining a light on local issues, caring about the people around her, making sure they're treated fairly.

That answer still stands out to me, even though it's a few years ago now.

Srushti is a fierce, highly intelligent and tenacious reporter. Extremely hard worker, attention to detail, willing to take on difficult, complex stories, and above all, wanting to get it right.

We need more people in this industry like Srushti; having her in my newsroom was an absolute pleasure.
